

What I've Come to Know

Met you on my way to any place else
Yeah, I was the fool, but even so
When the rain falls the river's gonna flow
Oh, darling what I've come to know

Now time is not my own
As we surrender to the day
And our roses are tired and overgrown
Maybe next year we'll plant another row
Oh, darlin' what I've come to know

Come June there'll be snow
Then the August winds will blow
Seems like they're chasing time away
In this little house of stone
Under the shade of the pines
Is where we will stay

Born in a storm and a season of change
Sheltered by the mountain's watchful shadow
Can we stay this forever laying low
Oh, darlin' what I've come to know

Come June there'll be snow
Then the August winds will blow
Seems like they're chasing time away
In this little house of stone
Under the shade of the pines
Is where we will stay

May you grow to be gentle like a willow
And move with the tide as it runs
You've given me a reason to let the light in
I'm gonna give you the sun

Never been so sure of everything
Yet somehow sure of nothing
Sometimes I think the cracks will start to show
Then you remind me to let go
Oh, darlin' what I've come to know

Oh, darlin' what I've come to know
